Dear Scott:

I did not know you had charged my account $750.00 on April 30, 2010. I notified your company on April 30, 2010 that I did not have the funds. I want my money back. You can keep the $69.00 you already charged my account.

The fact that you never called me to tell me you were taking the money out of my account speaks volumes for your company. I thought I was going to get a call before you charged my account.

I also find it disheartening that my e-mail to your company went unanswered and there was no response telling me that the money had been taken. I can only assume this is a scam operation.

You do not have my permission to record any of my conversations with anyone and you do not have my permission to use a mirror image of my website.
