Brad:

I do not have a user ID or a password for my account. I was never notified of the phone calls that you intercepted from my web site. As such, I was not able to respond to their inquiries. Lost business because of your actions. I do not have a user ID or password.

Be advised you are not to intercept any of my phone calls or e-mails again. Obviously, you are using a mirror image of my website and therefore are deliberately interfering with my customers contacting me directly. I specifically told you not to use a mirror image of my web site in a previous e-mail.

My credit card account was charged. It will be disputed and my credit card number has been changed.

I also received a call on May 27th from Yahoo about you setting up an account with them using my website address. I informed them that you were previously informed you were not to take any actions on my behalf.

I also received today a charge against my account in the amount of $813.00. You told me it was $750 per month including $69.00 for your management fee. I certainly believe you are padding the bills and are making more than $69.00 in management fees off of me.

I expect a full refund except for $69.00

I also want the names and phone numbers and dates of every voice mail that you intercepted from my web site.

Char Collins.
